

One-Day Summer Mural Project: Green & Golden Street Intersection

Chris Nelson lived in the historic home at the corner of Union Street and Greens Alley and also owned a space on Green Street.

Our friend and neighbor, Chris was a sailor, diver, boat builder, New London Planning & Zoning Commission member, lover of education, the sea, basketball and our fair city, who passed away in December 2013.

Chris was passionate about city planning, and spent a lot of his free time detailing plans for New London that were brilliant paths to creating a vibrant, walkable, livable, prosperous city.

To honor Chris and his vision for our city, a group of his friends are embarking on a small mural project at the intersection of Green and Golden Streets.

A graphic professional will create a circular painting designed to fit within the intersection. We anticipate first drafts will be ready by May 1, and that the painting will be completed on the morning of Sunday, June 8.

On behalf of the memory of Chris Nelson, we invite you to support the Green & Golden pavement mural project. If you would like to receive updates, please provide us with your name and contact information. We also welcome any level of financial support; checks can be made payable to Green & Golden Memorial Project, and mailed c/o R. Stuller, 19 Evergreen Avenue, New London, CT 06320.

Please don't hesitate to reach out to Bob Stuller or Lisa Crowley if you have questions or need more information.
